I bring a range of influences, from the classical music my family listened to, and the RnB, funk, and pop on the radio as I was growing up, exposure to multiple genres as an adult—and a unique perspective as a lyricist—to my music, resulting in an eclectic style.

Cold + Blue (EP, May 24, 2026)

My latest release features four tracks:

- Cold + Blue: a retro piano & strings ballad about a cruel lover
- Corporate Jive: a tune with shades of old school R&B about the rat race
- Time, Is It Our Enemy?: an existential love song with retro flair
- Lost In The Water: a neoclassical/folk song about a lost love, written with Louis Kirstein, who plays acoustic guitar

Bio

With training at the flute up to the Royal Conservatory grade 10 level, and as a budding singer-songwriter on the guitar by my late teens...life intervened, and I abandoned music for about three decades for a career as an arts journalist.

As a performer, I've sung backup, as part of a trio and duo, in a band, and in musical theatre. In 2022, I pivoted to a solo live act, and I've sung at local clubs, and in events & self-produced shows. In 2023, I began hosting songwriter's circle events, which has developed into co-hosting a monthly open mic for songwriters and other writers.
